THE KAISER'S BAD BREAK

A SENTIMENT TO WHICH BAVARIANS OBJECT.

Immoral Practices in the French Army—Germans Driven out of Russia—French Strikers Looking for Aid—The Pope's Health Improved.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—It is reported that the Kaiser will be decidedly pacific in the tone of his speech to-morrow at the opening of the Reichstag, while at the same time upholding the ability of Germany to defend the Imperial interests.

WILLIAM INSULTS THE BAVARIANS.

MUNICH, Nov. 16.—There is a strongly supported movement among the 80 city councillors to compel the erasure from the golden book of the Kaiser's autograph entry on the occasion of his recent visit. He wrote Suprema Lex, Regis Voluntas, "The will of the king is the supreme law." It is argued that the statement is not true of the King of Bavaria who is a constitutional monarch, and that if it was made as an allusion to the Kaiser himself it was an insult to the people of Bavaria. The feeling on the subject runs very high in Munich, and it is thought that if the authorities do not themselves expunge the obnoxious entry it may be done against their wishes. The incident has aroused all the Bavarian jealousy of Prussia, and it is openly charged that the Kaiser is endeavoring to entrench upon the liberties of the Bavarian people. The matter will probably be a matter of discussion in the Bavarian Chamber of Deputies.

SOCIALIST GRIEVANCE.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—The Socialist members of the Reichstag held a meeting yesterday to consider their course as to the case of the Socialist deputy Schmidt, held in imprisonment under sentence by the tribunal at Chemnitz. They unanimously decided to demand his release pending the session of the Reichstag. It is said that in this they will have the support of a considerable number of other deputies, irrespective of party.

IMMORALITY IN THE FRENCH ARMY.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—The Minister of War has ordered a thorough inquiry as to the alleged instances of immorality in the army. He is resolved to stamp out vicious practices, which, it is said, were especially prevalent in the time of the late Napoleon, and were supposed to have virtually disappeared with the other evils that attended the gilded pageant of the Empire. Of late circumstances have come to light that leave no doubt of a moral eclipse in certain quarters, and the case at Chalons is said to be not exceptional.

STRIKERS WANT AID.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—The miners of Pas des Calais have sent messengers to England to solicit aid in the their present strike from English miners. The latter will, it is believed, extend their support, although no official action has been taken on the subject. If the struggle is protracted aid may be asked for from America.

GERMAN EXODUS FROM RUSSIA.

VIENNA, Nov. 16.—Accounts from the interior of Russia say that a general exodus is beginning of Germans, who for a year past have had a leading share in the development of the industrial welfare of the country. There is reason to believe that the Russian Government, anticipating war with Germany sooner or later, has determined to rid itself of those who by their natural sympathies would be inclined to the German side. The Germans are not harrassed in the same degree as the Jews, but they are made to feel certain disabilities that have been in abeyance, and menacing hints are thrown out that worse is coming. The object seems to be to frighten rather than to force them away. Their pastors everywhere are persecuted, and some have even been sent to Siberia on the charge of making proselytes and of preaching against the Russian faith. Altogether the situation of Germans in Russia is fast becoming intolerant.

THE POPE.

ROME, Nov. 16.—The Pope has fully recovered his health and notwithstanding the cool weather takes daily exercise in the vatican gardens, except when it storms, when he takes exercise in a hall specially fitted up for the purpose in the vatican. It is reported that the Pope has not come to a decision on the question of leaving Rome, but that there is reason to believe that the idea has been abandoned.

AMERICA AND PARNELL.

DUBLIN, Nov. 16.—The American memorial exercises in honor of Parnell are favorably commented on here, and especially the tone of the oration of Chauncey M. Depew, so far as cabled. The Parnellites are especially gratified by the evidence of high American regard for the late leader, and they are discussing another mission to America for funds.

Gladstone Wins Another Seat.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The election to fill the vacancy in the Commons of South Molton division, Devonshire, was held yesterday, and resulted in a victory for the Liberal candidate, G. O. Lambert. This is a Gladstonian triumph. The former occupant of the seat, Viscount Lymington, was a Liberal Unionist.

Four Men Poisoned.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 16.—A horrible case of poisoning is reported from Centrepoint, in Henderson Co. Four cattle drovers went to the house of Joe Regan to collect money due them. Regan claimed that he could not pay the money and asked the men to give him more time. They refused to do this and told him that if he did not pay at once they would levy on his home. This angered Regan, and he decided on a plan to square the debt and get in a deadly revenge. He invited the four men to remain to supper, and during the meal brought in some white corn whiskey, of which all partook. The debauch continued far into the night, and one by one the men fell over into a sleep from which they never awakened. Next morning the four lay stretched on the floor of the dining hall. When found Jack Baker, John Holy and Saml. Wilson were dead and Wm. Haglin was unconscious, but was afterwards revived. Regan is under arrest. He is considered to be partly insane.

NEW WESTMINSTER ASSIZES.

Capt. White Sentenced to Twenty-One Months' Imprisonment.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 16.—Snow began falling here early this morning and is now over two inches on the level. It looks as it would continue all day. It is hindering traffic on the tramway line slightly.

The case of Capt. White is proceeding now. The evidence for the prosecution is in and that for the defense has just begun.

The assizes adjourned at 3 o'clock till to-morrow. Capt. White on the charge of obtaining $2200 on false pretenses got 21 months without hard labor. He said he would behave himself and confessed after sentence was passed.

In the case of Irvine, charged with obtaining money on false pretenses from the Vancouver Trades union, a nolle prosequi was entered.

THE EARL OF ABERDEEN

Talks About His Visit in a Speech Delivered at Toronto.

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—The Earl of Aberdeen, at present in Toronto, was the guest of the National Club on Saturday evening. In response to the toast of his health, the Earl arose and delivered a short speech. Referring to his recent trip across the continent, he said that what struck him most was the increased development and stability and growing confidence on the part of those living in the Northwest. Proceeding, he entered into the advocacy of mixed farming, holding that it was not wise to depend wholly on grain crops, bountiful as they may be. Farmers should get more into cattle raising and dairy produce, he added. He spoke in flattering terms of British Columbia's capabilities for fruit-growing. "I have left money behind me," he continued. "This shows I have confidence in the country." As far as the Dominion as a whole is concerned he was confident it would have a great future. "I know there are difficulties in the way" he continued, "but I hold that they are of a sort that can be overcome." Referring to trade matters, he said he could not help thinking that the aim should be to secure as great freedom of intercourse as possible, not only with the United States but with the other countries as well. He looked for the time when there should be closer relations between all the great English-speaking people, and said he regarded Canada as a link that would bring about that desideratum. Concluding he said "Canada is the greatest of the British colonies. But she is more; she is a growing nation. It is her destiny, and not only will she be a great nation but one of the most potent factors in promoting the peace of the world."

NANAIMO NEWS.

The Close of the Wellington Strike—Man on the Track—Masonic Ball.

NANAIMO, Nov. 16.—The last assessment for the Wellington strikers was collected at the New V. C. Co.'s office on Saturday, and later in the day the strike was officially declared off by the board of delegates. This has caused much satisfaction, as nearly all the men out of employment are at liberty to work at Wellington without any stigma being attached to their names. The strike has been a costly one and stubbornly fought by the men. The strikers in this instance have been well cared for by the union, so they have lost nothing by it. No concessions have been gained, but it has been a lesson to tyrannical bosses, who in the future will profit by it.

DID HE WANT TO COMMIT SUICIDE?

As the early train was coming in from Wellington on Saturday a man was observed walking along the track, and although the engineer blew the whistle and rang the bell, the man did not appear to notice the warning, and the train was brought to a standstill. Conductor Coburn got off and pulled the man from the track in order to allow the train to pass. The man made no excuse for his strange conduct, and as he appeared to be suffering under some mental trouble it is thought he intended committing suicide.

WINTER HAS COME.

This morning the ground for miles around Nanaimo is covered with snow, and the weather now presents every indication of winter. Building operations have been suspended and will in all probability be discontinued until spring. It is the general belief here that we are in for a hard winter, and preparations have accordingly been made.

WRECK OF THE SARAH.

SOME OF THE CREW CHARGED WITH COWARDICE.

A Letter in Reply From the Men—Rough Times for a Woman and Child—Capt. Greenhalgh and the Mate Blame the Sailors Who Deserted the Wreck.

The story of the wreck of the bark Sarah has been told already, but new statements are being made by the survivors who were brought up on the tug Mystery on Saturday night.

Captain Greenhalgh and the mate state that nine of the crew left the wreck in a boat, in spite of the calls of those on board to come back and save them. In consequence of this it is said two of the crew were drowned, and the captain's wife and child subjected to great trials and dangers. The few that were left on the wreck after nine of the sailors went away in one boat, could not launch the other boat, and had to construct a small raft on which they tried to reach shore, but it capsized and nearly drowned Mrs. Greenhalgh. For two days and nights they were on the wreck, but eventually got ashore where they found shelter at the house of Mr. Stalth.

This morning the captain and mate made a statement of the case to Collector Milne, and the charge laid against the men of deserting the ship.

The following statement was furnished by the men who were in the boat:—

We left Manila on the 20th September for Vancouver, and had an accident going through the heads, the ship parting her tow line and striking on a lee shore. However, we soon made all sail and the ship gathered good headway. The China Sea was crossed with one or two gales, and from there all went well until we made Cape Beale light, bearing on the port beam. At 2 o'clock last Sunday morning the report was given "a light on the starboard bow." The order was given then to take in topgallant sails and courses, and we kept on standing in for the land until about 6:30 or 7 a.m. Then we just made Cape Beale lighthouse, and before putting the ship on the other tack the captain and mate took a bearing of the lighthouse. We then stood out to sea until 2:30 p.m. We then kept the ship away before the wind and steered an east course with the wind from the south southwest, with thick hazy weather. It was not safe to keep the ship heading in for the land, but the captain still kept her standing in, until the man on the lookout reported land right ahead at 7 p.m., and no light to be seen, as the captain states. The mate asked if a light was to be seen and the lookout answered "no." About 15 minutes later he reported breakers on the lee bow, when the mate answered "all right." There was no effort made to take soundings then. At 8 o'clock p.m. the lookout relief was told by the man relieved that land and breakers were reported. At 8:30 the same cry came, "land ahead." They then cast the lead, and the soundings were 25 fathoms. The second mate then went forward on the forecastle and was told that we were right ashore. He then looked over the side and sang out "My God, I can throw a biscuit ashore!" The next order that was given was to shake the reefs out of the topgallant sails and loose the mainsail. The mate then answered "Never mind square the main yard and up helm." The captain then sang out "Down helm and get the land lead along." Soundings were again taken at 12 fathoms; they kept decreasing, and the order was given to let go the anchor, which was not very clear, as it had preventer stopper lashings on it, which took a considerable time to cut and get ready. The anchor dropped at five fathoms and a half of water. The man at the lead was then sent to relieve the ordinary seaman at the wheel, and after he had been there a few minutes the ship struck and hove the man away from the wheel up against the starboard bits. She kept on bumping very heavily and still drawing in to the rocks, as the anchor would not hold. The sails were all clewed up and left hanging, and some of the men went aft and wanted to get the boats ready in case they might be wanted. The second mate told one of the men to get a tackle rove on to the main yard to get the boats out, and as he was going about it the first mate asked him what he was going to do, and was told. He then answered, "Oh, never mind; she's all right. We won't require them. Go up and make the sails fast." This was not a very safe job, as the ship was bumping very heavily and the masts were liable to fall any minute. When we came down from aloft the first mate gave orders to the starboard watch to keep on deck and keep the light and bell going and sent the port watch below. Then the report was given to the mate that the ship was dragging, and the order was given to let go the second anchor, which called the watch out and they went about getting the boat off the forehouse into the tackle ready for lowering. The boat was left hanging in the tackle for ten minutes, when the main lift carried away, which left her hanging stern down. They then lowered away the forward tackle and lowered her in the water. The men then sang out, "Who is to go in the boat?" The mate answered, "anybody," so one of the men, Stevens, then went down and sang out to pass provisions and water down. While waiting the second mate and two or three hands got down into the boat, and after laying along side for about an hour, the provisions were hove down into her and Stevens sang out, "Any more coming in the boat?" about seven or eight times, loud enough to be heard all over the ship. The captain had plenty of time to put his wife and child in the boat, instead of staying and packing up all his things, the ship filling with water and heeling over fast. However, we hung alongside as long as we could until a great wave came along and broke the boat's painter and took the boat under the ship's counter. The blow started her stern post and stove in two of her planks. The second mate then gave orders to get oars out, and pull away from the vessel, before we got smashed up. We pulled a short distance from her, and the captain then sang out, "Mr. McCurdy, for God's sake don't leave us." The second mate said, "Men, it is not safe to go back with the boat." The mistress would not leave without the captain, and we knew that he is the last one to leave the ship in a case of this kind, so we proceeded to get some place to land if we could. After pulling for some hours we sighted a light astern of the boat, and we knew then that it was Cape Beale light. We then kept in that direction until we sighted Carmanah light and made in for the lighthouse. We arrived there all safe with the boats. The captain has published in the Colonist that the boat was broken going into the light house, which the light keeper knows is not correct. We sent a man and the light keeper's son on foot to the Indian village to get some assistance to the people on board if they were still alive. On the day following the second mate with two men went down to the wreck and found them safely landed and camped on the beach, with the exception of the two men who were drowned. One of the men told us that it was Kerr's own fault that he got drowned, because he was pretty drunk. The other man, Morris, was drowned by the same sea that broke our painter. He was doing his best to get the gig boat out. The captain says he was a favorite, but he could not have been such with him, for when Morris was sick and wanted to lay up with a bad arm and back, the captain told him that he should wait until his back was broken. He also said "I will make the —— work." This is all we have to say at present, hoping the truth will come out at the investigation, if there is one.

This afternoon the men were called to the Collector's office and an investigation made. If it turns out that the charges preferred by Capt. Greenhalgh are founded, the men will have no claim against the vessel for wages.

The old Radner Forges, 12 miles north of Three Rivers, have been purchased by the Canada Iron Furnace Company, and before the end of the year there will be placed upon the markets a quantity of charcoal pig iron which, according to experts, will be superior to the best of the famous Salisbury iron of the United States. Besides purchasing the forges above mentioned with ore rights of over 50,000 acres, the company has secured at Lac la Fortue the largest known lake deposit of ore in the world.

Patrick O'Hara, aged 108, who came to Canada over sixty years ago, settling near Merrickville, is dead. James Thompson, who served at Sebastopol, Inkerman and Alma, and also in the Indian Mutiny of 1857, has died at Peterboro'. Percival Platt, one of the oldest residents of Adolphustown, is dead. Thos. McCullough is dead, aged 70. He was one of the pioneer settlers in the township of Tyendenaga.

A writ has been entered at Montreal for the annulment of the marriage of Joseph Hogue, who ten years ago was married to Mrs. Jean Baptiste Tessier, who came from Ogdensburg and passed for a widow. Hogue says the woman was married to Tessier in Montreal thirty years ago, that he disappeared, and that it is impossible to say if he still lives. His religious scruples bother him, and he asks that the marriage be dissolved. Mrs. Hogue will plead that she really thought her husband was dead when she married Hogue. She believes Hogue wants to get rid of her and has hit upon this plan.

SAM GREER'S CASE.

Sentenced to Twenty-Seven Months in the Penitentiary.

Sam Greer was tried at the Westminster assizes on Saturday, Attorney-General Davie conducted the case for the crown, and Mr. Blake defended the prisoner. In his opening speech the Attorney-General said that the charge against the prisoner had been reduced to a misdemeanor. He then recited the facts of the case as they were to be presented in evidence.

The first witness was Thomas J. Armstrong, who said that on the 26th of September last he had gone in a box car to the property of the prisoner on English Bay in company with several police officers and some of the Canadian Pacific Railway employees. He went under authority of a writ to give the representatives of Donald A. Smith and R. B. Angus, of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, possession of the house and land then held by Greer. He saw Greer standing on the railway track. Greer said to the officers "Get off this land or I'll make it hot for you!" Witness had knocked twice at the back door and called to Greer to open it. Had received no answer except that a gun was fired through the door and he found that he had received part of a charge of No. 7 shot in his face and neck and some in his breast. The clothes worn at the time were shown to the jury. Witness went to Dr. Wilson, who extracted the shot and dressed the wounds.

To Mr. Blake—Had known Mr. Greer officially for about seven years. Had served a writ on the prisoner about five years ago to give up possession of this land. At that time Greer resisted, so did Mrs. Greer. He was obliged to threaten to use a revolver and put a ball through him. He did not know that the writ was a bogus one—he had heard such a rumor. He had withdrawn his charge against Greer for threatening violence, on condition that Greer would give up that land to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. He did not know at the time that the second writ was not a legal one. He had been told so by Mr. Blake but he did not believe everything that Blake told him. The counsel remarked here that he was sorry for that, as Mr. Blake was truthful and was a gentleman. Witness proceeding said that he did not know that the Canadian Pacific Railway had a peculiar method of their own of issuing and forcing writs of ejectment. Patterson, Calbick and Shirley were acting as officers of the sheriff. Was sure that Greer came to the front door and had a double barrelled gun in his hand. He had looked out and then slammed the door and bolted it. The gun must have been standing near the front door.

The door of Greer's house was produced, with the hole made by the shot, and there was a long examination in regard to positions.

Dr. Wilson described the nature of the shot wounds, which he had attended to professionally. None of the pellets had penetrated more than an eighth of an inch, some of them were lodged in the skin. Had found one contusion on the left breast, but the shot had not penetrated the inside shirt. The Chief Justice promulgated a theory "that as the resistance of the air caused the shot to scatter, so the greater resistance of the inch of wood through which the shot was driven would cause it to scatter as much as if it went through 30 feet of air." The jury looked at his Lordship and then at the little round hole in the door, and smiled significantly.

W. S. Patterson, of Vancouver, Provincial Constable, stated that he had been with Deputy Sheriff Armstrong on Sept. 26. Witness' evidence was in effect a corroboration of that of Armstrong. He had also gone with Sergeant Haywood and others in the afternoon with a warrant for the prisoner's arrest on a charge of shooting with intent to murder. After Mr. Cotton and Mr. Greer had come out of the house, and Greer had gone away, Mrs. Greer had passed out a gun. She had offered resistance enough for three men. Had warned her that if she continued to resist the police would be obliged to use force to eject her.

To Mr. Blake—Mrs. Greer had a child in her arms when witness first saw her. He was not quite sure that Greer had the gun in both hands, but thought he had the butt end of the gun on a level with his hip. There were in the house Mr. and Mrs. Greer, three or four children and the Syers girl. He would know the girl. Witness here pointed out the girl alluded to. She was near the door when the shot was fired. He saw four guns on the premises. The gun was still in the prisoner's hand after the firing.

To the Court—Did not see any smoke in the house after the gun was fired.

Thos. Shirley said he was a city constable of Vancouver. His narrative of the events of 26th September was substantially the same as those of previous witnesses. Greer had said that if they came with a proper warrant he would not resist it, but if they came without he would fix some of them plenty. He would not defy the law. Was not positive if Greer told him he did not know Armstrong was there.

Frank Devlin said he was a Canadian Pacific Railroad detective and was with the party who went out to dispossess the prisoner of his land. He had also been with them in the afternoon. Greer had said he would not resist a proper authority. Officer Haywood had told Greer that he was not going to give possession of the land to any one, and that as soon as he had executed his warrant his duties in connection with the case ended. Mr. Cotton, the editor-in chief of the News Advertiser, had asked Greer for a few minutes consultation and had gone with him into the house. Did not know what had passed between them but after a short time they came out and Greer went quietly away with the officer.

To Mr. Blake—Greer had said in his hearing that he would submit to legal right but was not sure he said he was not disposed to be mobbed by the servants of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

D. H. Haywood, the sergeant of the Vancouver police, said he had arrested the prisoner on 26th September, on a charge of attempt to murder. Greer had asked to have the warrant read and had said to the officer "you are not going to give anyone possession of this land." The sergeant answered that he had not anything to do with the land question. Greer had a gun in his hand when he went with Mr. Cotton into the house. He did not make a formal arrest as the prisoner had gone quietly along with witness as soon as he came out of the house.

George Carter was next sworn and said he saw a man he supposed to be Greer rush at Steves with a gun in his right hand and pushed him out of the door with his left hand. Armstrong had said "Open the door Sam, or we will have to break it open." Greer answered "If you do, I will make it hot for you, you had better get away, Armstrong."

Mr. Blake opened the case for the defence at 5:30 p.m. He recounted the difficulties that the prisoner had been contending with for many years past; how by the death of his solicitor in Victoria, Mr. Greer's papers had fallen into the hands of the opposing counsel who happened to be his solicitor's executor. This delayed the case of an appeal which had been issued against the writ the service of which had led to this trouble. He then called Miss Greer, daughter of the prisoner; she heard a shot fired but did not see her father fire the shot. She was looking out of the window at the time, and after the shot the room was full of smoke. The examination and cross-examination of the girl occupied over an hour, and her evidence was not shaken by the Attorney-General's searching questions. She told a straight story and stuck to it. The address of Mr. Blake for the prisoner and that of the Attorney-General for the Crown were both able and eloquent.

The Chief Justice in his charge to the jury said this was an utterly undefended case, there were only two points for the jury to decide: 1st, Did Greer commit an assault upon Deputy-Sheriff Armstrong? and 2nd, did he do actual bodily harm? On this indictment it did not matter about the intent. His Lordship explained the many actions which constituted an assault. Greer's child did not deny that her father fired the gun, although she did not see him do it and all the evidence for the Crown had shown that he did fire it.

The jury retired at 8:45 returning at 10:30 with the following verdict: "We, the jury, find that T. J. Armstrong received actual bodily harm from the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of the prisoner and recommend him to the mercy of the Court." Chief Justice Begbie rose from the bench, roared at them, called them various uncomplimentary names and hustled them back into the jury room, saying, "Bring in a verdict of guilty or not guilty of assault."

The jury retired again and at 11:50 returned a verdict of guilty according to the indictment with a recommendation to mercy. The judge asked the jury why they recommended the prisoner to mercy, and to this there was no answer. His Lordship then told Greer to stand up and asked him what he had to say. The prisoner answered that he was not guilty of any attempt to injure the Deputy Sheriff. The judge told him that the jury had found otherwise and that he could sentence him to three years, and that if he had been tried on the first count sent to the grand jury he would probably have got 13 years. He said further that the prisoner's claim had been submitted to two committees of the Legislature and had been discarded. The royal commission appointed to decide this claim had found that it was based on a fabric of perjury and fraud. The parties from whom he purchased the land in the suit had no more right to it than the man in the moon. The Judge sentenced the prisoner to 27 months in the Provincial Penitentiary. Sam Greer asked to be allowed to speak, but was refused. The crowd in the court room filled it to the door. The Sheriff ordered the prisoner to be handcuffed before leaving the box and to be held until the crowd had dispersed.

The verdict caused a great sensation in court, as a good deal of public sympathy is with Greer.

"It leads them all," is the general reply of druggists when asked about the merit or sales of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

THE CATTLE QUARANTINE.

If the people of Victoria have in the past failed to appreciate the beauties of Conservative government their education in this line will be much improved by the action of the Ottawa authorities in directing the enforcement of quarantine regulations against American cattle. The purpose of these regulations is the preservation of Canadian cattle from contact with animals from the States, as that country is scheduled by GreatBritain on account of pleuro-pneumonia and other diseases appearing in certain parts of it. In order to prevent Canada being scheduled also, and her live stock trade with Britain injured, it was necessary to establish quarantine against imported American cattle, and to make strict regulations regarding their transit in bond through this country. The live stock trade, being of so great importance to Canada, no one would think of entering an objection to these regulations as applied to the eastern part of the country. Besides, since Eastern Canada produces a large surplus of live stock for export, there is no need to import any for the food of the people. In British Columbia, and particularly in Victoria, the case is different. The local supply of cattle is not sufficient to meet the demand; therefore cattle must be brought from some place outside. The local butchers say that even the interior of this province cannot supply them with the animals they need, while the prices are practically prohibitive.

It was under this condition of things that the quarantine regulations were left in abeyance so far as the port of Victoria was concerned, cattle and sheep from the Pacific Coast States being allowed to come in subject only to inspection by the Government inspector. There is not the slightest evidence that any harm was done by this course, or that there was any danger of cattle diseases coming along with the imported animals. The motive for suddenly deciding to enforce the quarantine regulations did not arise from any fear of infection, for it is well known that coast cattle are free from all contagious diseases. There is only one reason for the action, and the people of this city will do well to keep that reason in mind. The fact is that the Government decided to enforce the regulation at the instance of the stock raisers in the vicinity of Calgary, who wished American cattle to be kept out in order that they might get the market for themselves. It is said, and it is most likely true, that the ranchers of the Interior of British Columbia backed up the Calgary men in their demand, not choosing to incur obloquy by coming forward themselves, but that does not mend the matter so far as Victoria is concerned. Everybody knows that the enforcing of the regulation means simply the prohibition of the importation of cattle from across the border, for it is utterly impracticable to bring in these cattle and keep them 90 days in quarantine. Apologists for the Government's action say that the price of beef will not go up, because dead meat can be brought from across the Sound, and because an impetus will be given to the raising of cattle in the province. The consumer will do well to remember, however, that imported carcasses have to encounter a duty of three cents per pound, which with other incidental charges will in all likelihood enhance the price of beef here to the extent of at least five cents per pound, a nice bonus truly for the people of Victoria to pay for the encouragement of the beef barons of Calgary and interior British Columbia. They will remember, also, that the increase of the local supply cannot ease the market for years, as cattle do not spring from the soil ready to the butcher's hand. Besides, no encouragement of stock-raising is needed beyond the very substantial measure afforded by the duty and the general conditions. There is no other market either in Canada or the United States that favors the farmer so much as that of Victoria. The farmers do not need encouragement, and do not want it, since they fail to realize the full advantage offered them by the market as it is.

The simple truth of the matter is that the Ottawa Government is now about to enforce the regulation not on any ground of public policy but for the benefit of a few beef monopolists, and the consumers in Victoria will have to pay the piper while the said monopolists dance. Let them remember this piece of paternalism when another election comes around.

THE LEPERS.

On Saturday an arrangement was made by the Victoria and Vancouver committees whereby the two lepers that have been troubling the latter city will be placed on Darcy Island, Vancouver bearing a due share of the expense of maintaining the lazaretto. An effort is now to be made to induce the Dominion authorities to assume the burden thus shouldered jointly by the two municipalities, and it is hard to see on what ground they can refuse. The Dominion Government allows the Chinese to come in on payment of a capitation tax, from which it derives some seventy or eighty thousand dollars of revenue yearly, out of which it can surely set aside the small sum necessary to keep up the lazaretto. It is not fair that the cost should be saddled on the two cities. The Government spends large sums every year in erecting unnecessary postoffices and other public buildings for the mere purpose of bribing constituencies, and it cannot with any grace refuse an expenditure such as proposed here for the protection of the public. When the Government accepts the Chinaman's entrance fee it is morally responsible for any evils he may bring with him. In the same way, it may be said, the Canadian Pacific is responsible for the two men who were so unceremoniously dumped on Vancouver. It has been stated, and without contradiction, so far as we have seen, that the railway was paid full fare for these men from New York to China, whereas it has carried them only as far as Vancouver. In view of this fact the lordly refusal of the company to hold itself in any way responsible for the maintenance of its two passengers is extremely refreshing. There may be no way of compelling either the Dominion Government or the C.P.R. to look after the leprous immigrants, but they cannot get rid of their moral responsibility.

It seems that the recent report regarding a threatened descent of hungry Chinamen on the United States from Canada was started by a member of the weaker sex by way of a joke. The Chicago Herald thus refers to the affairs:

Treasury Agents Harlan and Kemel, who have been stationed for a month on the Canadian border to prevent Chinamen crossing into the States, returned yesterday. Captain Harlan declared the stories sent from northern points about 10,000 Chinamen being distributed along the border and seeking to break into the States are pure fiction. He says a woman stirred up the entire Treasury Department by informing one of the customs officers that she had seen 52 Chinamen concealed with some Indians just across the line in Canada and awaiting a favorable opportunity to come into the States. The officer telegraphed the story to Washington, and the authorities, believing an invasion had been determined upon, half a dozen officers were dispatched post haste to the border. After the officers had been started on their way the woman said she related the story as a joke.

Lovely woman should take care how she stirs up Uncle Sam with jokes like this.

THE TRUSTEES' DISPUTE.

TO THE EDITOR:—I would like to ask the following questions concerning the school question:—

1st. Why was Chairman Hayward's letter received by the council, after his position had been duly explained at a recent meeting of the council?

2nd. Was it good taste for Mr. Hayward to be present at the meeting of the council?

3rd. Why did Trustee McConnan—a Government appointee—present himself at the meeting in conjunction with Mr. Hayward?

4th. Did Mr. Hayward ask Trustee McConnan to go to the meeting in order to shield his (Mr. Hayward's) presence there?

5th. Was it manly and honorable for Chairman Hayward to take advantage of the absent trustees at the last meeting of the board by stating that accounts had better be passed by the full board, and the finances would not then be "caucused away?"

6th. Can Chairman Hayward mention any one instance where the finances were "caucussed away?"

7th. Can Chairman Hayward prove that the "recalcitrant" trustees are wrong in the position they assume? He makes lots of statements, but does the Act bear him out? Did not Trustee McLaughlin prove conclusively that he and his colleagues are acting according to law?

The whole thing amounts to this, Mr. Editor, Messrs. Richards, Morrow and McLaughlin, because they have had the courage of their convictions, are frowned upon by the august chairman, who desires to have everything his own way, the same as he has had in years gone by, and now that he finds he cannot twist these three gentlemen around his finger he acts like a mere boy, creates trouble on the board, and endeavors to have these three gentlemen put in such a position that they must either obey the mandates of an arrogating chairman or get out.

The "recalcitrant" trustees were appointed by the council to perform certain duties and trusts; they have been doing this, and because they do not agree with Mr. Hayward they must not bring their difficulty before the gentlemen who appointed them? This is not the proper way in my opinion for the council to look at the matter. Can the council suggest any other means whereby the matter could have been settled? The resolution of censure would, undoubtedly, have been voted down by the chairman's casting vote, and then the three trustees would have been sitting under a chairman they had no confidence in. Would it have been consistent to do so on their part?

RATEPAYER.

THE CATTLE QUARANTINE.

TO THE EDITOR:—I see in Sunday's Colonist the report of an interview with Mr. Van Volkenburg regarding the cattle quarantine. Now, if there is anything I dislike it is a turncoat. I met Mr. Van Volkenburg on Friday last, and he expressed himself as in great sympathy with the local butchers as well as the public in general. In fact, he said he was intending to go into business again, but if the law was enforced it would be impossible for him to do so. Putting it in a mild form, he is a horse of another color now. I think if the butchers would treat Mr. Van Volkenburg as a wolf in sheep's clothing it would be about right. It is my opinion that he is trying to get a little sympathy from the Mainland stock raisers. I do not think he will succeed.

We do not object to the duty at all, but we do object to our cattle being quarantined for 90 days, which means that we cannot import American cattle. I am ready to receive good cattle from any farmer in the province at a fair price. As regards the small farmers, what are we to do, while they are raising their cattle for market? The reason I have been purchasing American cattle this season is that I could not get British Columbia cattle at a living price and pay my expenses, and, as I do not wish anyone else to pay my creditors, I concluded to make a change.

ROBERT PORTER.

DEFECTIVE PLUMBING.

TO THE EDITOR:—It is only now and then that some accidental revelation exposes work of the criminally careless or incompetent plumbers. Sometimes it is fatal disease in families, which leads to critical examination of his work and in rare cases the official inspectors of buildings detect it, but it is a fact known generally to physicians and to all who have given the subject careful study, that one-half or more of the fevers and other malarial maladies which visit Victoria are logical results of bad plumbing. The keen competition in trade compels active underbidding for work, and that causes plumbing contracts to be taken at such low prices that the contractors must often choose between doing bad work where it is concealed or losing money on the contract. Few are willing to do good work at less than its actual cost, and thence comes the temptation to do inferior work. The one part of a residence that should not be offered to competition by contract is the plumbing. Only the most experienced, skilful and honest men should ever be employed to do plumbing in a home, and it is safest to watch it with care. The ignorant or dishonest plumber will sow the seeds of death in every home if he is allowed to do the plumbing, no matter how well he is watched or paid, and the only safe rule is to employ thoroughly competent and honest men, to pay them fairly for their work and then require them to guarantee it for five years, subject to semi-annual tests. This rule would be likely to assure first-class plumbing, and it would drive the incompetent and criminal plumbers out of business.

There is no excuse for ignorance of poisonous gases in a home. The integrity of the pipes can be as easily and as certainly tested as the leak in a roof when it rains. Closing the pipes and applying sulphur vapor under pressure will not only find every imperfection in plumbing, but it will declare the exact point of defect, alike by its visible color and by its odor. If it enters the house anywhere, it exposes the negligent, incompetent, or criminal plumber. This test, or some other equally effective, if there is such, should be applied to each home at least every spring and fall, and it should be a part of the plumber's contract to repair for a term of years all defects thus exposed at his own cost.

A recent report of the official inspector of house drainage, where he reports the plumbing in a house as "done in the most incompetent and dangerous manner," offers an opportunity for master plumbers to act. The criminal plumber can be driven out of business if the people will act with common fidelity to themselves, and it is high time that the good work should be begun in earnest.

DEAR SIRS,—My children were taken ill with ulcerated sore throats bordering on diphtheria. I had nothing in the house but Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which I used with great benefit. Church Finances.

Rev. Coverdale Watson last evening read the quarterly statement of the Pandora Methodist church, showing as follows: Income by envelope, $1,180.20; loose collections, $568.90; total for quarter, $1,749.10. An average of $133.92 per Sunday. Present current expenses are $150 per week, as follows:—Interest, $66; salaries (minister, organist and sexton,) $60; light and water, $7; fuel, $3; incidentals, $6. Receipts since church opening leave a deficit at this date of $400 or something over $17 per Sunday.

Another "Miraculous Escape."

Steamer City of Kingston is responsible for a "miraculous escape" which occurred last evening. A hackman had just deposited his fare on the wharf, and had removed the baggage from the vehicle when the steamer blew her whistle. The horses took fright and bolted, leaving their mark at the freight shed as they passed by. They were caught near the Fernwood road some time after, the carriage somewhat the worse for the journey, and the horses themselves very much shaken up.

Morgan Committed for Trial.

The young fellow Herbert Morgan, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses on an order of the Co-operative Company, was up in the police court this morning. In the evidence a much more serious offence was brought out, which caused the magistrate to send him up for trial. The second offence was one of signing his employer's name to a certain note for $20 without his employer's consent. Mr. Belyea gave the young fellow a short lecture before sending him away. His honor did not see why a young man like him, earning $35 a week, and with no encumbrance of any kind, should be in such a position. The charge was a very serious one, and he had only himself to thank for his present condition.

New Alarm Box.

The new fire alarm box, No. 4, near the outer wharf, was tested this morning at 10:30 o'clock. A new hydrant has been placed on Erie street, James Bay, and another will be placed at Simcoe and Dallas Road.

Whale Washed Ashore.

A dead whale was washed on to the beach at Uciulet a few days ago, and about 150 pounds of bone secured by the station keeper there. It is worth $5 per pound. The Indians cut the big fish up and used the flesh for food. Much of the bone was also wasted.

Sale of Work.

The Ladies Aid of the Cedar Hill Presbyterian congregation are sparing no effort to make their first sale of work in aid of the building fund of a church, in the lecture room of the First Presbyterian church, Pandora avenue, tomorrow afternoon and evening, a success, and a success it undoubtedly must be.

To Open a New Lodge.

The Grand Master, J. E. Phillips, with a number of sisters and brothers will proceed to New Westminster on Wednesday morning for the purpose of instituting a Rebekah Lodge. Tickets for the round trip can be purchased at the C.P.N. office, Wharf street, by obtaining an order from the Grand Master.

Hunting Party Missing.

Last week Messrs. Babbington and Dominey, who are seal hunters, left on a hunting trip down the coast in a sailing boat. Since then nothing has been heard of them, and the report that a boat has been found bottom up off Gordon Head is making the missing men's friends somewhat anxious, although the boat which has been found may not be the one used by the hunters.

Lawless Indians.

Collector Milne will report to the proper authorities on the matter referred to in the TIMES of Saturday, that the Pachena Indians had looted the wreck of the bark Sarah. The matter of whiskey being brought over to the Indians in that locality from Dungeness and Neah Bay will also receive attention. The Indians at that point are the worst on the coast, and seem to have no fear of the law whatever.

Smuggling Story.

The Seattle Telegraph of Saturday tells a long story of the seizure of the Victorian sloop Plug for an infraction of the U. S. revenue laws, and the arrest of her master Frank Young. The latter is charged with having sworn that the Plug was an American vessel. It is said he had papers from both Victoria and Port Townsend, and was beating the customs of both countries. He was formerly an inspector of customs.

Goes Back to San Francisco.

Leong Gan Feong, the Chinese woman who was denied admission into Victoria when she arrived here by the Umatilla from San Francisco last week on the grounds that she was an immoral person, has returned by the steamer to the Bay City and will probably be deported to China. No habeas corpus was asked for in her case. The full particulars of the case appeared in the TIMES of last Monday.

For the Hospital.

Mr. Joshua Davies, president of the Jubilee Hospital, went to Vancouver on Saturday with the deputation from the city council, to inspect the crematory recently erected in that city. Mr. Davies was much pleased with the crematory and he therefore authorized Mr. Mohun, C.E., to obtain plans and prices for one which the directorate of the hospital intend to build to be used in connection with that institution. Mr. Davies' scheme is to build a crematory and laundry and run them with machinery that will also operate an electric light plant. The electric light and crematory could also be used by the Old People's Home which the city intends to erect on the lots donated by Mr. Rithet adjoining the hospital property. President Davies is taking a great interest in the scheme, knowing that it will help to make the hospital one of the most comfortable and best regulated institutions of the kind on the Pacific coast.

ROW ON THE EMPRESS.

Chinese Crew Attack Customs Officers and Resist the Police Force.

The entire Chinese crew of the Canadian Pacific Company's steamship Empress of Japan, now lying at Vancouver, are up in arms. They on Saturday drew knives and weapons against their own officers and a squad of civil authorities, and although there has been no blood spilled the end is not yet.

The trouble arose over some of the crew attempting to smuggle goods ashore, when they were stopped by the special officer, who was set upon and beaten by the Chinese. A squad of police were repulsed when a warrant against the assaulters was being served. This morning, however, the ringleaders were given up, and were on trial at the police court.

SAFE IN PORT.

Sealing Schooner Mascotte Returns From Behring Sea—All Well—Bad Luck.

On the 25th of June last the sealer Mascotte sailed from this port for a sealing cruise. She was in command of Captain Ernest Lorenz, a sailor of experience, who has been in the sealing business for several years.

Nothing has been directly heard of the schooner until she entered port early this morning, with 79 sealskins aboard. She had been looked upon as missing by many, although there were others who did not believe any harm had come to her.

Captain Lorenz reports all hands well. The heavy weather in the sea was very uncomfortable, the equinoxial gales being exceptionally heavy. He entered the sea the latter part of July, and while there never sighted a single vessel except the whaler Herremann. The bad weather was against sealing, which partly accounts for the poor catch although the knowledge that men-of-war were patrolling the sea no doubt kept Capt. Lorenz from the best sealing grounds.

Shortness of provision and fuel drove the schooner from the sea earlier than she would have come. She put into Ungo Island for provisions, and there picked up Mr. F. W. Worster, wife and child, and Col. S. Lucas, who have been looking after a coal mine there which has been closed down.

Sand Point was also touched on the down trip and eight men were paid off there, and left her to join the Port Townsend schooner Challenge, which was to go into the sea sealing. It might be mentioned here that the master of the Challenge knows that the sea is closed.

The crew of the Mascotte are glad to get back to port again after their long trip. All have been well, and had it not been for the lack of provisions the schooner would have stayed out still longer.

CREMATORY AND LEPERS.

The Victoria Deputation at Vancouver—Matters Discussed.

The deputation of aldermen and civic officials who went to Vancouver on Saturday for the dual purpose of conferring with the Vancouver council in the matter of dealing with the cases of leprosy and of seeing the garbage crematory lately erected there in operation, were met at the wharf by Ald. Templeton and Scoullar, representing the Vancouver council, and taken to the City Hall, where a meeting was held. The full deputation consisted of Ald. Renouf, Munn, Holland and Robertson, Dr. Milne, medical health officer; Mr. Joshua Davies, president of the Jubilee Hospital Board; Mr. W. W. Northcott, assessment commissioner; and Mr. E. Mohun, C.E., sanitary engineer. At the meeting it was finally resolved that a memorial to the Federal Government should be drawn up demanding that it assume charge of the leprosy cases, signed by the aldermen and the members of the Commons and of the Legislature, then forwarded to the Victoria council and they would do likewise. Both resolved not to let the matter drop till the Dominion authorities had assumed charge and both cities had been compensated for the expense already gone to.

The deputation, who were joined by a deputation of Westminsterites, drove to the crematory, where that institution was seen in working order. Every part of it was thoroughly inspected and all pronounced that it worked without fault, for no smell was perceptible anywhere, though upwards of 15 loads of all sorts of garbage were undergoing destruction.

Before leaving Dr. Milne examined the lepers now confined in the shack at Vancouver. He pronounced one of them unmistakeably a leper, though the other showed symptoms of venereal disease rather than leprosy. Most of the deputation returned home on Saturday.

The deputation was treated very hospitably by the mayor and aldermen of the terminal city.

FROM ALASKAN POINTS.

The City of Topeka Returns From the North—Alaska News.

The steamer City of Topeka arrived from Alaskan points last evening and came into the inner harbor to undergo repairs. The Albion Iron Works have received a contract to overhaul her machinery and boilers and put her in the dry dock to have her hull cleaned and painted.

NEWS NOTES.

Porter & Schrap have purchased the Alaskan.

The revenue steamer Bear returned to Ounalaska from her Arctic cruise. The success of the whaling fleet was only moderate.

The natives of King's Island were found in a starving condition, and a purse of $150 was made up on the Bear to purchase flour for them at St. Michael's.

The ice was so heavy that the Bear did not reach Point Barrow.

Dr. Jackson made a commencement in the introduction of the domesticated reindeer of Siberia into Alaska—small bands of reindeer being left as an experiment upon the islands of Ounalaska and Unimak. In procuring the deer Capt. Healy rendered hearty co-operation and most valuable assistance.

The most successful feature of the Schwatka Scientific Expedition was the breaking through of the Mount St. Elias range, a feat never before accomplished by man.

Fine fat venison is a drug in the market at present. This week fine bucks weighing a couple of hundred pounds were offered by the Indians at from $2.50 to $3 a head.

A most serious obstacle to the proposed trans-Pacific cable by way of the mainland of Alaska and the Aleutian Islands, has arisen in the discovery of such an extreme depth of water northeast of Japan, as to preclude the sinking of the cable.

The Alaska Packers' Association, comprising the controlling interest in the 33 salmon canneries of Western Alaska, has been formed in San Francisco. The association is controlled by the following trustees: S. M. Smith, G. W. Hume, J. N. Knowles, Charles Hirsch and E. B. Beckwith, D. B. Bradford as secretary.

A QUICK TRIP.

The Danube Makes the Round Trip to Naas in Seven Days.

The steamer Danube, Capt. Meyer, arrived at the outer dock at noon yesterday, having made the round trip to the Naas in seven days, one of the quickest trips on record. Exceptionally fine weather was encountered from the time the steamer left Victoria until she returned. She brought down 4000 cases of salmon, the last of the season, and fifteen tons of oil from the Hudsons Bay Company's refinery. The passengers were J. H. Lee, McKenzie, T. Atkinson, J. Mathews, Capt. E. M. Hunt, J. Robillard, J. Crewfond, H. Grant, Rev. J. Betts and F. R. Greer.

Rev. Betts has been among the Indians for several months learning their habits and dispositions for the purpose of giving a course of lectures during the winter.

Mr. F. Greer has been up in Omineca and the northern portion of the province taking the Dominion census.

VALUABLE COAL FIND.

Coal Found in Rich Quantities on the Shumagin Group, Near Sitka.

Mr. F. W. Worster and Col. S. Lucas were passengers down from Ungah Island by the schooner Mascotte this morning. They report that on the northwestern portion of this island—the principal one of the Shumagin group, distant about 900 miles to the westward of Sitka—some valuable coal mines are located. During the past four years the owners and parties interested have been doing some good work in the way of prospecting and developing the property and now feel satisfied that they have got a good thing.

Besides supplying the local demand measures are on foot, it is understood, to place this coal in a large way on the San Francisco market next year. The coal veins lie one above the other 20 to 30 feet apart, numbering four to six workable veins of five and six feet from roof to floor. These veins can be traced for a distance of two miles. A tramway has been built connecting the tunnel with a 350-ton coal bunker at tidewater. Two wharves and dwelling houses have been erected and there is considerable rolling stock on the ground. By tunnelling and back-stooping the the coal is easily and cheaply mined, virtually inexhaustible in extent; and, it is claimed that cargo lots can be delivered in San Francisco at $4 per ton. Analysis made by Prof. Price, shows it to be somewhat superior to Seattle coal, but being of a lignitic formation, as are all Pacific Coast coals, it carries a large percentage of moisture.

GROWING IN GIRTH.

Why It Is That Americans Are Becoming Stouter.

Original Types of Physique Passing Away—Beer Drinking Said to Be Responsible for the Change.

Recently a writer in the Boston Transcript stated on the authority of his tailor, or perhaps a number of tailors, that the southerners—supposed to mean southern men—are growing bigger around the waist. This increase of girth was declared to be on an average, an inch and a half, and it was set down as an evidence of increasing prosperity among the southern people.

The subject as denoting a distinct physiological change in the corporeal stature of the southern people is worth study, says the New Orleans Picayune. If such a change has taken place it must be attributed to beer, not to any cause spiritual or moral.

The original type of the American physique is a body tall, slender and lean. There is an absence of fat, the bone and the brawn alone being strongly developed. This is the type of the American Indian, and it was the type to which the white race in America rapidly conformed. The first settlers of the states, from New England to Florida, were of the English type—English, Scotch and Irish.

So far from being of a slender figure, those people were stout and portly, like the English of to-day. They came to the new world with the bodies which the physical forces and influences there had made for them, but when those bodies began to be operated on by the forces and influences which they encountered here the immigrants succumbed to the natural law and began to take on the type of the men of the new world.

In the course of a couple of centuries the descendants of the English and Dutch and German immigrants had become lean, slim and bony. It was the type of the men all the way from New England to Georgia. The prevailing characteristics of "Uncle Sam," of the Yankee and the southerner always represented them as tall, thin and gaunt, but always vigorous and muscular. The Americans are said to be the most nervous people in the world, except the American Indians and the Arabs. These physical and physiological conditions must be attributed to the dryness of the American climate. Our climate is unduly dry, except on the Pacific coast.

The revolution of the planet on which we live to the eastward carries with it the vast mass of the surrounding atmosphere. The lofty ranges of mountains along the western coast of all the land in our hemisphere cuts off the moisture from the Pacific ocean and causes it to fall on the Pacific slope lands and pour back into that sea, while the vast interior of the continent is left dry, much of it being arid deserts. This eastward drift of air brings with it no moisture, and but for the gulf of Mexico, which penetrates so far into the continent, the greater part of the country west of the Mississippi river would be uninhabitable. On the contrary, this eastward drift of the atmosphere carries vast loads of moisture to Europe, and so that continent far upon the confines of Asia has a more moist climate than that of America.

The physiologists have rightly attributed the leanness of the Americans, aboriginal and assimilated, to this excessive dryness. Now, within half a century, the introduction and rapid diffusion and increase in the use of beer as a beverage has begun to work a remarkable change. As far as the human form is concerned it is equivalent to making the climate less dry. Under its influence the people are getting stouter. New Orleans is the center of an extensive manufacture and distribution of beer, and the beverage is made and consumed in all parts of the south, where its use was much the rule as in the west. No wonder the southerners are growing in girth.

This is the simple truth of the matter. The American people are becoming stout, and beer is the cause of it.

About Noses.

There are those now who pretend to read character by the shape of the nose. They say that large nostrils show courage. People of fearless disposition breathe fully and freely. All the fiercer animals have dilated nostrils. The drooping nostril shows histrionic talent. If the nose also droops, it denotes a tragic power, and if only the nostril the capacity is marked for the interpretation of comedy. Where the nose is thin at the bridge it shows generosity; while a nose that is thick at the bridge argues acquisitiveness. When it is "tip-tilted like the petal of a flower" the person is inquisitive. A projecting nose argues a disposition to investigate. It is ahead of the person, as it were, and wants to scent out things. Look at your nose in the glass and see what sort of a person you are anyway.

A Pet Spider.

A spider is the novel pet of a Laingsburg (Mich.) girl. He is kept under a goblet and carefully fed, positively refusing to begin a meal until three or four flies have been thrust into his apartment. These he lets walk all around him and even over him, allowing them to think him perfectly harmless, until in some of their trips under his nose he apparently wakes up and grabs them. After one of these meals he loses his appetite for about forty-eight hours. He seems quite content with ten flies a week.

Bleaching Paper.

Very satisfactory results are now being obtained by some of the English paper manufacturers in bleaching paper by electricity, the process rendering the paper perfectly white, without in the least injuring its strength. The process in question depends on the use of a solution of magnesium chloride, which is decomposed by the action of a strong electric current into chlorine and oxygen on the one hand, and into magnesium and hydrogen on the other. Plates of platinum are used as electrodes.

CLEVER JOHN CHINAMAN.

Shrewd Scheme Practiced to Remain in the United States.

A sharp trick of the Chinese to remain in this country has been exposed by Government Agent Wicker. He says: "Chinamen en route from San Francis to Cuba in transit through the United States, on arriving at New Orleans, have been brought into the heart of the city, where they form a sort of Chinese colony, and where they are fed and cared for by Joe Lamb, an enterprising Chinaman. They remain here from two to ten days, according to the time of the arrival and departure of the steamers by which they are to go to Cuba. During this time substitutes are engaged to take the place of those who desire to remain here and have the money to pay for that luxury. Being in possession of these certificates, they have no trouble in returning from Havana, and are ready to engage for substitutes to the next batch of their countrymen arriving from San Francisco. I became convinced that this practice was being carried on extensively, visited all of the Chinese resorts of the city and familiarized myself with the Chinamen, thus enabling me on the arrival of the next forty from San Francisco to detect three substitutes who had been placed on the steamer Arkansas for transit to Cuba. The originals, who were then in the city, were discovered and brought to the steamer, but they declined to go on board until the money paid by them to the substitutes was refunded. The money was refunded in my presence, and thus the entire system was exposed. Joe Lamb, the agent of the Southern Pacific road, and the substitutes were arrested, but the United States district attorney not finding any provision of law by which substitutes could be punished, the men were released on their own recognizance. As far as the New Orleans port is concerned, the Chinese puzzle has been solved. They cannot stop there."

ARMS OF THE CITY OF PARIS.

Agitation on Foot to Have the Fleur-de-Lys Displaced.

One of the members of the municipal council is endeavoring to get up an agitation for the removal of the fleurs-de-lys from the arms of the city of Paris, which consist of a ship of ancient build sailing on a river, and surmounted by fleurs-de-lys, with the motto: "Fluctuat nec mergitur." It is, however, doubtful whether the member in question will succeed in getting public opinion round to the idea that the eviction of the fleurs-de-lys, which figured so conspicuously on the arms of the kings of France, is essential to the dignity of the metropolis in these republican days, says the London Telegraph; yet one precedent at least might be found, for the first Napoleon replaced the royal fleurs-de-lys by the imperial bees; and during the second empire Baron Haussmann, when prefect of the Seine, had a serious idea of suggesting their restoration. As a matter of fact, if the fleurs-de-lys were eliminated from the arms of Paris, and the example became contagious, the municipalities of many other cities in France would be puzzled sorely, for the fleurs-de-lys abound on most of their blazons, to the exclusion, in many cases, of any other symbol. The proposition, however, is already encountering ridicule, and the suggestion is made in one quarter that if the fleurs-de-lys are removed the ancient ship ought to be replaced by some modern craft, such as a torpedo boat; while another mocker asks why the Eiffel tower should not symbolize the city of Paris. The radical councilor, to be strictly logical, should have agitated for the complete abolition of one of the vanities of feudal times.

Decline of the Banjo.

The professional manicure is lamenting the decline and fall in New York of the banjo, which truly delightful instrument sent many a bright dollar in her direction. Banjo playing is ruin to the finger tips. It makes them sore at first, but after a few weeks of practice they become hardened and equally unlovely. That little airy flip of the fingers across the strings that looks so pretty is trying on the nails, and hangnails often become chronic. For the relief of all these ills girls were wont to appeal to the manicure with gratifying regularity. Now, however, mandolin playing is the proper thing, and the little steel thimble worn is ample protection for the most delicate fingers. There is a certain romance about the mandolin that the banjo never had, and for evening music on a piazza or a yacht its possibilities are boundless

Something New in England.

One of the recently-deceased members of the Royal academy has defied a long-established precedent and bequeathed a double portion of his estate to his daughters, leaving his sons, even the adored eldest son, with less generous provision. The usual pleasant and convenient custom in our mother country is to devote the family income to sending the boys to a first-class school, and later to establishing them in life advantageously, and, finally, to leave the poorly-educated girls practically destitute at the death of the father, that the property may go the sons; in all of which may be detected decided suggestiveness of the custom prevalent in some barbaric countries of killing nearly all of the babies at birth which are unfortunate enough to be girls.

The Kaiser's Beard.

The emperor has ordered dealers in photographs not to sell portraits representing him as he appeared without a beard. This decree leaves dealers with a large stock of unmerchantable photographs on hand, and involves quite a loss to them. But the caprice of the kaiser does not stop here in its effects. All the lithographers, copper plate and steel engravers are busy issuing new plates to show the emperor as he now appears, with a beard, and the painters on glass and porcelain, and the workers in leather and wood imagery are overrun with orders for representations of the kaiser in the new style. Old stocks are being remodeled where possible, but the bulk of them are a dead loss to the trade.

A MILLION ADRIFT.

The Strange Story of a Mississippi River Flood.

How a Poor French Settler Became a Millionaire for Two Hours and Without Being Aware of It.

In the south end of the city, commonly called Carondelet, but which at one time bore the very significant name of Vide Poche (empty pocket), there resides one of the early French settlers, Joe Marshall by name, says the St. Louis Republic. "Old Joe," as he is called by everyone, is one of those unfortunate Frenchmen who settled in Carondelet while it was yet a burg of some six or seven houses. He acquired a great deal of property, as did all the old creoles, and when a more active civilization encroached upon the district and the property began to be worth something, he lost it all through carelessness and bad management. It may not be generally known that Joe was a millionaire for two whole hours at one time, and the circumstances of his rise and fall are best told in his own words:

"It was in the summer of 1849—I was on the river then. The river was booming and it was unsafe to go out in a small boat. That was in the early steamboat times when everyone traveled by river, and the wharf in St. Louis was lined with boats which stuck their bows so close together in order to get to the wharf at all, that they formed a wall along the river front, and when a fire broke out on one boat the others were so tightly wedged in that escape was impossible. It had been storming all day, and in the evening the river was a raging torrent, ready to tear away its banks or to dash the huge trees that had been uprooted by it in its mad course through the hull of the steamer that ventured from the bank out into mid-stream.

"About nine o'clock that evening a fire broke out on the levee among the boats. There was a panic. Some of the passengers who were spending the night on the boats in order to make sure of their staterooms lost their lives in the panic which followed, and others left their valuables. The loss was immense, both of life and of property. The red glare of the fire was distinctly visible in Vide Poche, and I and my partner sat up and kept watch on the river, expecting to see some of the passengers of the burning boats drift by, and to rescue them if possible. We waited long, but no victims of the fire came. At last as we were about to give up the watch, we saw out in the current a dark object that appeared to be a raft. It shot swiftly into view, and as it passed us we could see the white face of a man holding on to a raft which he had constructed of four life preservers, and on which he floated a large chest, which, from the care he had taken to place it in safety at the risk of his own life, we judged to be very valuable. We resolved to save him if possible, and, jumping into our skiff, we pulled toward him. At that time the raft was caught in one of the whirlpools below the Elwood street dike and was broken to pieces. The man lost his hold and was swallowed in the vortex, while the chest, too, went down. We rowed about the spot to pick up the life preservers, which had been separated, and in picking up the second one found a rope attached to it. My partner wanted to cut it, but I stopped him and told him to save the rope, as it might be useful. He commenced pulling it in, but before he had gotten much of it in the boat he called me to his assistance, and we worked away pulling in the dead weight at the other end of the rope.

"Finally the task was finished, and, as a reward, instead of the body of the man whom we had just seen drown before our eyes, we found the chest which he valued more than his life. We hauled it ashore, with many misgivings, and I did not open it, but put it carelessly before my shanty.

"The next day I had plenty to do picking up wreckage and watching for the bodies of those who had perished on the boats. About five o'clock in the evening a gentleman drove down to the shanty. He seemed greatly excited. He was accompanied by a constable. They asked me if I had seen a chest floating down the river. Well, to make a long story short, the man was the owner of the chest, which contained his whole fortune—more than a million. The man who was drowned was his brother, who had locked him in his stateroom to perish and tried to make off with the treasure in the way described.

"I told him of his brother's death, and he remarked: 'Poor fellow, I forgive him and shall not tell father of his attempted crime.' He was a member of one of the best families of the city at the time, and after taking me to the nearest saloon, where we had the best in the house, he gave me five thousand dollars to keep the whole affair quiet and not let his name be known. What did I do with the five thousand dollars? I lived like a gentleman on it for a year.

"Did I ever see the gentleman again? Yes, quite often. He is one of the leading men of St. Louis to-day."

Sublime Assurance.

The nerviest man in America has been discovered. He is a tramp, and when last seen was disappearing around a corner in Topeka, Kan., one day lately. He had entered a restaurant and had ordered an elaborate meal. After eating it with great relish he took his check, walked to the cashier's desk and coolly informed him that he had no money. The cashier put his hand to a shelf under the desk, produced a pistol and ordered the man to pay. "What's that?" the tramp asked, pointing to the pistol. "That, sir," answered the other, "is a revolver." An expression of relief came over the man's face as he replied: "Oh, I don't care a straw for a revolver; I thought it was a steam pump. Good afternoon." And he walked out before the astonished cashier could rally from his surprise.

A COWBOY'S PRAYER.

The Effect of a Mother's Influence Upon an Oregon Ranchman.

Writing in the Princess of a mother, who, though "no angel," was "a dearer being, all dipt in angel instincts, breathing paradise," Tennyson exclaims:

Happy he
With such a mother! faith in womankind
Beats with his blood, and trust in all things high
Comes easy to him, and though he trip and fall,
He shall not bind his soul with clay.

The poet's thought is illustrated by a little story told by Rev. Joshua Cooke in an article on the mule-deer, contributed to The Big Game of North America.

"The clergyman's oldest son, a ranchman in Oregon, stands six feet and an inch in his stockings, and is a powerful man, a good shot, a fine hunter, warm-hearted and generous. One day a fellow ranchman came to his cabin and said:

"'Mr. Cooke, my old mother is dead. She was a Christian woman, and I don't want to put her in the ground like the cattle we bury. There isn't a minister within thirty miles. Your father is a minister; you have taught in our Sabbath school. Would you come and say a word over my mother?'

"It was a new experience; the big boy thought a moment, and then said:

"'Whitehead, I never did anything of the kind, but if it was my mother—and I have one whom I worship—I should feel as you do. Your mother shan't be buried like a dog. I'll come.'

"Afterward he wrote to his father:

"'I recalled the words I had so often heard you pronounce over the dead. All alone I read a passage of Scripture, sang a verse of a hymn, said a short prayer, said "the dust to the dust," and all was over. It was a tight place, father; all the men and women of the valley were there, but I thought of mother, and it carried me through.'

"A rough young ranchman said to this son one day: 'Bates, we notice that you will take part with us in our sports up to a certain point, and then you stop. We wonder why.'

"'Jerry,' he answered, 'when I left home I made up my mind to go nowhere and take part in nothing that would displease my mother.'"

DEVOTED TO SPIDERS.

A Lifetime Spent in Collecting and Studying the Insects.

"One of the curious things of this life," remarked an ex-congressman to a Pittsburgh Dispatch man, "is the devotion of some men to an idea without regard to the opinion of the rest of the world and without hope of reward. I know of a man from my state who has devoted a lifetime to spiders. He died in the Alps, where he had been for two years collecting specimens of spiders. He sacrificed his life to spiders. He has left a collection of some twenty-eight thousand distinct varieties. You would hardly think there were many more spiders in existence. This man had them stuck up in sections, in classes, fully labelled.

"He began fooling with spiders when a boy. He had a room that he would allow no one to sweep or clean, and encouraged the spiders to such an extent that they would come to him and feed out of his hand. He discovered that by repeatedly destroying a web a spider reached a stage where his power of reproducing web is exhausted. When that stage was reached the spider attacked another spider, killed him, and took his ball web from him. Just like a human being, don't you see? Before this man died he embalmed his knowledge of spiders in two volumes. He was a spider crank."

A MEXICAN LEGEND.

Indians Who Believe in a Wonderful Inland City.

"During the frequent visits I have made to Mexico," said a mining engineer of Philadelphia to an Inquirer man, "I have come in contact with many of the Indians resident there and have heard some very singular stories. One, which all the Indians unite in telling, is that far in the interior exists an enormous city, never yet visited by white men. It is described as peopled by a race similar to the ancient Aztecs, who are sunworshipers and offer human sacrifices to their diety.

"The race is said to be in a high state of civilization, and the Indians say that the city is full of huge structures which are miracles of quaint but beautiful architecture, and are situated on broad, paved streets, far surpassing those of the City of Mexico.

"One Indian, I recollect, assured me that he had seen the city and its inhabitants with his own eyes, but had been afraid of being captured and had fled. Of course, I did not believe him, but, all the same, it is not a little strange that the accounts of the Mexican Indians relative to the mysterious and magnificent interior city agree perfectly."

An American Woman Abroad.

The Boston Transcript tells of a lady from a western territory who entertained her American friends in London very much by her naive descriptions of the places in Europe she had visited that she had never even heard of before. Westminster abbey and Mme. Tussaud's were among them. It was when she was starting for Rome that she astonished a party of people at a dinner-table by saying: "I hear there are some of those hecatombs in Rome, such as they have in Paris; but I shall never go to see any of them anywhere. I couldn't bear to think that I was looking at the œsophaguses of the martyrs!"

Character in Shoes.

Scarpology, or the science of telling the character of a man by the wear of the soles of his boots, has been attentively studied by a Swiss doctor of the name of Galli. Speaking briefly, wear at the back of the heels invariably indicates conceit, pride and vanity. Soles worn toward the toes demonstrate deceit, and even criminality, while a sole that shows an equal amount of wear on every part of the surface denotes a frank, upright and fearless character.

FATE OF THE COMMUNISTS.

They Were Seized by the Charcoal Girls and Dumped Into the Bay.

Twenty years ago, when the uprising of the communists had been sternly suppressed in Paris, and many of the ringleaders had paid the penalty of their misdeeds, with backs against a dead wall and eyes confronting a file of grim soldiery, a few members of the defeated commune escaped and fled wherever chance and opportunity led them. Some reached Martinique, and were not slow to air their doctrines among the simple islanders.

To these refugees the statue of Josephine seemed a lasting reproach—an ever present evidence of the royalty they loathed and of the government they had left behind them. They thought it would be a fine thing to deface this work of art as they had effaced so many in Paris, and dynamite was actually procured and disposed to the best advantage around the base of the statue. But the proceedings of these old country roughs had been noticed by some of the women of Fort de France—broad-shouldered charcoal girls, strong and active porteuses, who had no idea of allowing indignity to be offered to La Jolie Creole. When the destroyers assembled to wreak their spite on the marble, they found themselves seized by a score of stalwart women, relates Mary Shears Roberts in St. Nicholas. The ruffians were secured, tied hand and foot, and, since they were caught in the act, no time was wasted on a trial. They were simply cast, bound as they were, into the bay. The waves over which Josephine's boat used to speed so lightly a hundred years ago now roll above the bodies of the vandals who would have insulted her memory. Communism found no congenial soil on Martinique, and the popular verdict was: "Served them right." It all happened twenty years ago, and you will hear nothing of the tragedy to-day unless you inquire closely into the history of Josephine's statue.

HIS FATHER WAITED.

But He Finally Succeeded in Reaching the Presence of His Son.

The boat was pulled by a couple of boys and was headed for the White Squadron, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. It was about the hour when the gentle gurgle from a five-gallon milk can, as its contents are scooped out into pails, resembles the melody of "The Old Oaken Bucket."

In the sternsheets sat a living picture of "your Uncle Reuben." The swash from his coat tails hid a clean-cut trail through the blue waters, and his whiskers were filled with salt.

Swiftly the boat swept by the Chicago, Newark and Boston, but was almost swamped by the old man's efforts to "gee" alongside the Concord.

The marine on duty ordered the boat to keep away, giving as his authority the general order that no visitors were to be allowed aboard. The old man carefully laid a big piece of tobacco on the gangway grating and said:

"Young man, you want to make a bee line for that big fellow in the white pants with a sword on his port quarter. You tell him his father is getting his constitution ruined waiting to see him, and if there are any fences in the way I advise you to climb them unless you want to hear from old New Hampshire."

In less than fifteen minutes the old man took possession of the entire wardroom, and the officers were proud of their guest.

ONE REALLY GOOD INDIAN.

A Dusky Worthy in Real Life Who Equals Any of Cooper's Heroes.

For many years John Sabattus, the last of the Norridgewock tribe of Indians, lived in Vassalboro. Here, says the Fairfield (Me.) Journal, he spent the latter portion of his days and acquired the high esteem of the white men far and wide. He was a tall man, over six feet in height, and possessed of great strength and power of endurance. When Gen. Arnold marched his army on his celebrated expedition northward through the woods of Maine, John Sabbatus was his guide. The services he thus rendered were by no means slight.

When this expedition was over he made Vassalboro his home, and here is his grave. No stone marks his resting place and it is only a few of the oldest people around that can identify the spot. Had some James Fennimore Cooper written of him as Cooper did of the "Last of the Mohicans," doubtless an imposing monument would have towered above his remains.

Refuse of Paris Streets.

The uses made of the refuse of Paris streets are numerous. Little wisps of women's hair are carefully unraveled, and do duty for false hair by and by. Men's hair collected outside the barbers' serves for filters through which sirups are strained; bits of sponge are cut up and used for spirit lamps; bits of bread if dirty are toasted and grated, and sold to the restaurants for spreading on hams or cutlets; sometimes they are carbonized and made into tooth powder. Sardine boxes are cut up into tin soldiers or into sockets for candlesticks. A silk hat has a whole chapter of adventures in store for it. All this work employs a regiment of rag-pickers numbering close to twenty thousand, and each earning from forty to sixty-three cents a day.

Artificial Gold.

To make something that looks like gold: Take one hundred parts (by weight) of pure copper, fourteen parts zinc or tin, six parts magnesia, fifty-six parts sal ammoniac, eighteen parts quicklime, nine parts cream of tartar. Melt the copper and add gradually the magnesia, sal ammoniac, quicklime and cream of tartar, each by itself, in the form of powder. Stir the whole for half an hour, add the zinc or tin in small pieces, and stir again till the whole is melted. Cover the crucible and keep the mixture in a molten condition for thirty-five minutes. Remove the dross and pour the metal into molds. It has a fine grain, is malleable and does not easily tarnish.

Mothers

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mothers' friend. 35 doses, 35 cents.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. FRESE MOSHER, 90 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO

There settled in Baker county, Oregon, near what is now Baker City, a man who has since become identified with the resources and development of that country. This man is no other than Mr. John Stewart, one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens in the county. In a recent letter he says: "I had been suffering from pains in my back and general kidney complaint for some time, and had used many remedies without any but temporary relief. The pains in my back had become so severe that I was prevented from attending to my work and cannot move about without the use of a cane. Hearing through a friend, of the wonderful cures effected by Oregon Kidney Tea, I was induced to try a box, and from that very first dose I found instant relief, and before using half the contents of the box the pains in my back entirely disappeared. I have every faith in the virtues of the Oregon Kidney Tea, and can conscientiously recommend it to my friends. I would not be without it for anything."

Oregon Kidney Tea cures backache, incontinence of urine, brick dust sediment, burning or painful sensations while urinating, and all affections of the kidneys or urinary organs of either sex.

Jottings of Interest to Marine Men Conveniently Compiled.

The many friends of Capt. Smith, of the steamer Etta White, will regret to hear that he is indisposed.

The ship Seminole was libeled on Saturday at Seattle in the United States district court by eight seamen for wages amounting to $2,240.

The new steamer Flyer, has arrived at Seattle from Portland where she was built. She is a twin screw propeller, 176 feet long, 21 feet beam, and draws about 13 feet of water. Her registered net tonnage is 280 tons. Her engines are of 2,000 horse-power, triple expansion, of the latest improved make, with 21, 30 and 54 inch cylinders and 30-inch stroke. She is believed to be able to develope 20 miles an hour. On her trip from Portland she averaged 17 knots.

A DANGEROUS SPOT.

TO THE EDITOR:—You may remember that about a year ago the Government Inspector of Schools was nearly drowned whilst fording Veddar creek on the Government main road from Sale to New Westminster, and that a few months afterwards Augustus Blanchard and a team of horses were actually drowned there. It was reported that the coroner's jury blamed the Government. The Legislature last session granted the Government $2000 to erect a bridge there, which it has so far neglected to do. Will you kindly publish this to warn strangers of the dangerous place, and will you also urge upon the Government the necessity of complying with the wishes of the Legislature before you have to chronicle the sad news of another man drowned.

WATER.

IN NEED OF REPAIR.

TO THE EDITOR:—I noticed in your paper of yesterday a letter signed "Viator," and as a resident of Heywood avenue can endorse his views in regard to the abominable condition it is now in. He spoke of holes large enough to lose a horse and buggy in, and he certainly did not go wide of the mark, as I observed yesterday myself a fine team of horses and a load of hay stuck fast in a hole for over an hour. There is, I believe, a small staff of men and teams still employed by the corporation to do jobs that are really necessary, but if the majority of the go-ahead aldermen we have say that there is no necessity of immediate action, why I will "dry up." At any rate if something is not done soon we will be all starved out, as hackmen, expressmen, etc., are kicking when asked to go out there, owing to the present horrible condition of the road.
